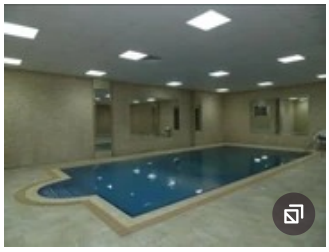
Level 130: Pools and Mirrors



Level 130 is a series of adjacent, mostly barren rooms that each have exactly one pool in their centre. The floor is an indeterminate polished stone that has similarities to travertine or marble, and the walls are a similar material though cut with a rough texture. The level is illuminated by fluorescent lights in the ceiling, which is mainly composed of ceiling panels. Whilst the rooms are generally quadrilateral in shape, the pools can be any manner of abstract designs, though this is not to say that they cannot be more regular shapes as well. The pools are surrounded with grilles to absorb any water that splashes out and have railings or stairs leading directly into them to create an easy method of entry. The pool surfaces are lined with blue material to enhance the colour of the water. Whilst there is almost no furniture in the rooms, save for the occasional plastic chair or the like, many mirrors are present in the rooms. The mirrors can cover all of a wa
